New Alumni Staff GI Aztec Returns

The activities of the San Diego State College Alumni Association have become so widespread and varied a staff has been appointed in order to cover all alumni news completely. The new appointees comprise a group of experienced writers whose interest in the Alumni Association is of long standing. Each are personalities with a "go places air" to keep pace with progress.

Harriette Marshall, '32, has been appointed Associate Editor of the Aztec Alumni News. She first began her writing career as editor of the Russ at San Diego High School. Later she served on the Aztec staff in college, and more recently founded the school newspaper at Woodrow Wilson Junior High School. Harriette has a very complete writing background and an uncanny ability for getting things done.

Mabel Grant Hazard, '40, will serve on the staff as News Editor. Mabel has long been active in San Diego writing circles. While at State she also served on the Aztec staff, and edited the 1939 edition of Del Sudoeste while still only a junior. Mabel originated the college news column, Aztec-Nicalities which still appears (by a different author) on the society pages of the Sunday Union. Mabel's large following of faithful readers will be interested to watch for her by-lines in this publication.

Norma Boldman Pyle, '39, another writer who needs no introduction to alumni readers will be Contributing Editor. Readers will remember her column Norma's Notes in past issues. If you see her scooting by with pad and pencil in her hand, you can be certain Norma's playing reporter in the interest of a better Alumni Publication.

Mary Schneider, '36, has been ap-pointed Feature Editor of the Alumni News. Mary writes the Modernaire column in the San Diego Club Magazine and is secretary to the advertising manager of Consolidated Vultee. She is one person who has an unusual nose for news, so it's wise to be "quote conscious" when Mary's in the crowd.

GI Joe in the person of a returning Aztec stopped at the campus and highlighted his visit with a chat in the Alumni wigwam (that's an Aztec ad-lib for office).

'Sure wish I could join the Alumni Association," the vet said.

"Well, why not, Joe?" It only takes one semester at State to be eligible, a mere 20 weeks' work, in good standing (that's a C average to you). Joe layed a crisp five dollar bill on the desk and walked out of the office with his San Diego State College Alumni Association dues card that signifies he is a member in good standing all during the twelvemonth period following the day he paid his dues.

If you're waiting for someone to send you an invitation by smoke signal, don't forget it's always "open season" for alumni memberships in this tribe. There's no time like now to come along with the crimson and black, for "Once an Aztec, always an Aztec." (If you want to make it a family affair, just slip in another dollar for the hubby or missus membership.)

The 1947 celebration of Home-Coming promises to be one of the greatest program of activities in the history of the San Diego State College Alumni Association. The schedule of events begins Friday, November 14, with Open House on campus all day to visit class rooms and renew acquaintances with faculty and friends, according to Gordon Wiggins, '36, general chairman for the two-day program. Following in the evening will be the informal Home-Coming Dance from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. at the Continental Room of the Hotel San Diego. Sol Schultz '41, who so efficiently directed arrangements for last year's dance again is acting as dance chairman, assisted by Al Morrison Ex-'25, and Joe Suozzo '43, who are all working to make this dance an affair no alumni member can afford to miss.

The Home-Coming Parade will be reviewed along El Cajon Boulevard starting at 2:30 p.m. Phil Poindexter, campus rally chairman and parade director, announces that the floats will be shown again in the evening at half time.

The Reception honoring classes of '16, '17, '27 and '37 will follow the parade at 6:00 p.m. in Scripps Cottage and end at 8:00 p.m. just before game time. Byron Lindsley '37 is in charge of the class honorees and extends a warm welcome to all former students, and especially to those who are members of the honored classes. Elizabeth 'Ish'' Calligan '43 is making arrangements for the reception and for her committee she has chosen Jean Pittman '41, Catherine Wueste '43, and Peg Sinclair '45. The game with Whittier immediately follows the reception bringing to a close the 1947 schedule of Home-Coming activities.

TALENTED TRIBESMEN WANTED FOR RALLY ROUTINES

Phil Poindexter, the campus rally chairman released an invitation today inviting all alumni members who can either sing, dance, play a musical instrument, tell side-splitting gags, or originate hilarious stunts to contact him immediately at the Associated Student Body Office or his home, Talbot 3230. This year the rally chairman is not only responsible for school pep assemblies, but also festivities before the game and at half time. Even though your contribution may not land you a contract in Hollywood, don't masquerade in modesty but call Phil for a "booking" in one of his school spirit productions.

November's Guest Editor . . . Dr. Clarence Osborn

Dr. Clarence Osborn studied at Stanford University placing particular emphasis on the internation phase of history and political science before beginning his II year tenure at San Diego State College. He added practical experience to his three college degrees by serving as an overseas private in World War I from 1917-1919, and again as a commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve in World War II. Today, as professor of political science and Chairman of the Social Science Division of the Department, Dr. Osborn qualifies as a student of international affairs.

War Is Inevitable—UNLESS

Twice within a quarter century the people of the United States have had, as a result of war a chance to do something about the obvious. Any American schoolboy—to say nothing of the college student knows that no nation lives unto itself and that war is a natural consequence in a world of sovereign states where each power assumes that

Crawford Motors Finer Used Cars 3500 El Cajon T-4525 1335 Broadway F-9-5003 BILL CRAWFORD '37 It seems like yesterday its own national policy is right and that all other states may either accept that policy or take the consequences.

Our first opportunity ended in tragedy of repudiation. The League of Nations, repudiated by its chief protagonist, was never used honestly by its members. We have had another war. This time we not only have legally accepted the United Nations but we have also insisted that others follow our lead. As a result we now have in a formal fashion an instrument for international action.

We have a new device—an international organization pledged to the international rather than the national solution of world problems. Yet there is talk of the inevitability of war. Why? There is a ready answer which you can read any day in any newspaper. The United Nations is too weak.

(The AZTEC ALUMNI NEWS presents a series of subjects vital to the interests of all college people, edited each month by a different professor, who is a recognized authority in his specific field of work—ED.)

Like all human institutions, the United Nations is imperfect. It does not introduce government into the affairs of the world. The Assembly can discuss, recommend, and condemn but it cannot legislate. The International Court of Justice can substitute law for policy as the criterion for settling disputes between states only if cases are presented to it. The view of the representatives of a majority of the people of the world may be overridden in the Security Council by the veto of a single member. But at the moment it is that we must use to move in the direction of more decency and less atrocity in the management of world affairs.

Actually the question of the perfection of the United Nations is of much less importance than the conversion of our acceptance from a formal legal obligation to a practical plane of use.

The great weakness of the United Nations lies not so much in its faulty structure as in the failure or refusal of states to use the United Nations as an international device. Two basic lines have been used; by-passing, and the advancement of purely national policy.

Russia is using her position in the Security Council to defend the purely Russian national policy originated by the Tsars — the establishment of Russian hegemony in the Balkans. We have more difficulty in understanding that the United States is continuing both in and out of the United Nations the policy well established by British diplomacy of checkmating the expansion of Russian influence in the Mediterranean area. Regardless of who is the kettle and who the pot, the United Nations is being used as a device for executing balance of power politics instead of being used as a forum for the development of an international program for the settlement of the political ills of a very difficult area. We know that two wars have developed partly by reason of the pursuit of power politics in connection with the Balkan area.

The by-pass technique is well illustrated by the lines along which the Marshall Plan has been handled. The problem invloved is the economic re-habilitation of all of Europe. Through the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations all of Europe could have been drawn into a discussion of a common difficulty. The United Nations has, however, been by-passed. The result is a political cleavage between the Russian bloc and Western bloc. The Marshall Plan, if put into operation, will be a plan for the economic rehabilitation of that part of Europe which belongs to the Western bloc. The political cleavage will be intensified. We will be better prepared to slip into the power politics which lead to war.

The United States cannot alone save itself and the world from the repetition of war. The dangers which confront us are dangers which confront the people of other states. The people of Russia cannot expect world cooperation for the maintenance of peace and at the same time insist upon the execution of Rus-

Be Happy in Your Home—Buy, sell with the JOLLY JACKS We have desirable 1, 2, 3, 4, 5-bedroom homes—For buys that satisfy R-9269 Call Jolly Jack R-9269 sian national policy. The same dictum applies to Britain, China, Pakistan, and the United States.

We can't shape the Russian mind. But we can shape our own mind. Our choice is simple. We can continue to play the balance of power game, confident that if we do others will follow suit. The question then will not be "Will we have war?" but rather, "When will it come?" If we don't like that choice we must consistently make an honest effort to shape American foreign policy along lines of international consideration. If we do, others may eventually be intelligent enough to follow the leader. That is our chance to develop the imperfect weak United Nations of today into a strong medium for the salvation of humanity.

What can you as an individual do? Peace is the result of tedious hard work by individuals such as yourself. Educate yourself to see beyond the headlines of conflict and disaster, and affiliate yourself with like minded people in an organization such as the American Association for the United Nations. Combine your individual strengths intelligently so that the end of our efforts will be civilization —not catastrophe!!

NEXT MONTH

Is the 1948 Phase of the Economic Cycle Predictable?

You can't afford to miss this thoughtprovoking editorial by Dr. Roy E. Camerson. After completing study at the University of California, Dr. Camerson joined the San Diego State College faculty in 1929 to serve as Professor of economics and head the Department of Social Economics. Long considered 'an investment and business authority, Dr. Camerson deals frankly with the facts concerning our current economic cycle in the December issue of the AZTEC ALUMNI NEWS.

Montazuman of the Month

Retiring Alumni President

Bob Breitbard '41 has been chosen "Montazuman of the Month" for his spectacular service as president of the Alumni Association. Bob, who is associated with his brothers at the California Laundry, and the charming Mrs. Breit-bard play a leading part in San Diego athletic circles.

Although the Alumni Association is an independent organization functioning entirely on its own initiative, through the untiring efforts of Breitbard, 1947 has become a year of unparalleled progress that will be remembered forever as an era of achievement in Aztec Alumni history.

Headed by Breitbard, the Association first raised over $15,000 in athletic and educational scholarships. The organization assumed complete responsibility for the publication of the Alumni News. It completed arrangements for the first annual re-union dance at Pacific Square that brought out many civilianized veterans who hadn't been seen since their campus days.

The Association directed arrange-ments for the State-University of Southern California baseball game at Lane Field, and assisted the senior class in sponsoring two campus dramatic productions, afterwards donating over a hundred dollars to the Theater Guild to purchase a circular curtain for the stage.

The organization also arranged a basketball game between the Varsity and the Alumns, and held the huge Home Coming Dance at the Sun Room of the Hotel San Diego. It also sponsored the 1947 Kick-off dinner.

The Alumni is simply alive with activ-ity, and it has been Bob Breitbard whose air of enthusiasm has sparked this year's agenda of activities.

Lawrence and Associates) claims the distinction of being the alumni salesman who can sell a one legged man a pair of shoes, and from the efficiency with which he handles the advertising for the AZTEC ALUMNI NEWS one wouldn't doubt but what he could. Mrs. Lawrence, the former Elsa Rauch, class of '41, was active in radio production while on campus, and from her very smooth and finished telephone voice one can tell she's a person who knows her way around the theater. Both are still interested in the little theater group at college. Little Gary Don, three months, a junior collegiate who will some day beat the tom tom for the Aztecs, resides with the senior Lawrences at 4259 Orchard.

 The class of 1941 adds these names to our Alumni Roster. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Nettles (Mary McOsker) '41, 3658 Grim Ave., San Diego, J-8436. It's Wayne from football fame, and we all remember Mary from her excellent work on the Inter-Sorority Council. Mrs. Sol Schultz (Charlotte Fried) '41, 3511 Curtis St., San Diego, another new member and a smart speech student while on campus. Robert F. Arenz, '41, 236 Kal-mia St., Apt. 108, San Diego, sent in his $5.00 Alumni dues this month too.

A. U. W. and perpetuate their college contacts.

Edited 17 Alumni Issues

Charles T. Byrne who has edited the AZTEC ALUMNI NEWS since April 1946 has resigned to devote all of his efforts to the office of executive secretary, which he holds in the Alumni Association.

Excepting a 40-month tour of duty in the maritime service, Charles has been associated with the college since 1934 when the campus was part of his news beat for the San Diego Union. It was Byrnes who first suggested to Al Morrison, then graduate manager, that a publicity department be established to represent the college.

The Board of Directors of the Alumni Association has elected Robley Baskerville whose production of this issue serves as her introduction to the editorship.

Once an Aztec an Alumni Forever

The students who attend San Diego State College somehow have a way of sticking together. Whether it was a furlough in France or an advance in the Admiralties, whenever one meets an Aztec there's a friend indeed. And now that the world is free, our college days more than ever have become a background for friendship and activity as well.

Whatever job awaits our energies, the Alums step forward together. Our Alumni News is financed by the unsurpassed support of our advertisers. Let us include them in our Alumni fraternity of friendship. Everyone lives on appreciation....and our advertisers are no exception.

So the next time you step to the shopping center, remember when you buy, it's smart to say you saw it in the Aztec Alumni News!!

Alumni Sports Review

The Aztecs of 1947 may not win that long awaited CCAA football championship (they were still in the running as this issue went to press with the all-important San Jose State game coming up) but there seemed little doubt that Bill Schutte, in his first season as head coach, had come up with a team destined to be labeled as one of San Diego State's best.

The first four games of a 10-game schedule saw the Aztecs come through with three victories, including probably the nation's first upset of the season in beating Utah State, 24 to 19.

Operating for the first time from the T formation, the Aztecs captured the fans' fancy with a heavy, hard-charging line led by George Brown, All-American guard at the Naval Academy in 1943; a dangerous passing game featuring Art Filson on the throwing end and a collection of hard-running halfbacks.

Probably never in history has an Aztec football season gotten off to a more auspicious start than did this year's against Utah State at Logan when, on San Diego's first offensive play of the game, Sophomore Bob Tomlinson, behind massive interference, swept around right end to go 85 yards for a touchdown.

Before the stunned Aggies came to, John Simcox had run over another touchdown and had passed to Jack Kaiser for a third. Barney Newlee kicked a field goal for three extra points to give San Diego a 24-0 lead at the half. While the Aztecs tired rapidly in the mile-high altitude, Utah State fought back for 19 points in the second half but couldn't quite produce the clincher.

The ball-hawking of the Aztecs was a feature of this game. Brown and his outstanding running mate at guard, Keith Curry, led a charging line that caused the Aggie backs to fumble nine times in the first half, and seven times San Diego recovered the ball.

Two weeks later, in their home opener before an overflow crowd in the Aztec Bowl, Schutte's men scored at will in overwhelming California Poly, 56 to 13. Everyone on the bench got into this one, and eight men figured in the scoring: Jess Bryant, Simcox, Dick McKee and Joe Riccobono on running plays; Riccobono and Bob Chapman on passes; George Coleman with an intercepted pass; Lloyd Cassady with an intercepted fumble and Newlee with eight consecutive placements.

The Aztecs hit a slump and a strong College of Pacific team simultaneously in their third game at Stockton and went down to a 13 to 0 defeat. Two costly fumbles deep in their own territory plus the necessity of punting against a strong wind in the first quarter put the Montezumans in the hole and they were never able to get out. Meanwhile, C. O. P. unleashed a bevy of speed backs who managed to crack the stout Aztec defense twice for touchdowns.

Back home again, San Diego ran up against a surprisingly strong Occidental team in the 18th meeting of the two traditional rivals but came up with a 14 to 0 victory, their third of the season. The scoring was accomplished by Mc-Kee on a 55-yard runback of an intercepted pass and Simcox on a 10-yard sweep around end. Newlee, as usual, tacked on the extra points.

Newlee, the automatic placement kicker who is becoming known up and down the Coast as "The Toe," appears to be kicking himself right into the record books this season. After making good on 18 out of 22 placement attempts last year, he calmly booted 13 consecutive extra points after touchdowns in the first four games, in addition to a 27-yard field goal against Utah State.
