High School Journalists Compete Here Thursday

By Julie Kaufman

Approximately 300 journalism students representing 18 city and county high schools will participate in the 14th annual Journalism Day from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on campus.

Three new features have been added to this year's event, according to Dr. James L. Julian, journalism department chairman. These added attractions are news photography, editorial writing competitions, and a special news writing clinic conducted by Arthur Wimer, professor of journalism, for students not entering competitive events.

Competition will also be held for feature writing, sports writing, society writing, copy editing, and news writing.

FIRST COMPETITION

The first competition period will begin at 9:45 a.m. in various campus buildings, following a registration period and general assembly conducted by Paul West in the CLS auditorium. Mike Sullivan, editor of The Aztec, will address the group.

During the first competition, non-competitors will attend a movie in the art building. They will participate in Wimer's writing clinic during the second competition period from 11 a.m. to noon.

PROFESSIONAL JUDGES

Professional judges of the competition will include Ken Simms, Evening Tribune managing editor; Alden Godfrey, Evening Tribune staff writer; Pete Eiden, San Diego Union women's page reporter, and Newell Jones, Evening Tribune editorial editor.

Also judging will be Dr. De Wayne B. Johnson, Walter Harvey, and Arthur Wimer, journalism faculty members. College journalism students will assist the judges in preliminary screening of the entries.

Donors of awards will include the San Diego Evening Tribune, Chula Vista-National City Star-News, East San Diego Kiwanis Club, San Diego Jaycees, Convair, San Diego

Russian Language To Be Taught Here In Fall Semester

A one-year course in elementary Russian will be taught here starting in the fall semester, according to Dr. L. P. Brown, language professor.

Brown said the teaching of Russian is in accordance with the demand for new emphasis colleges are placing on education in science and mathematics.

Brown cited how the Russian language is becoming widely used in technical circles.

"So few people in our country can translate Russian," he said. "Russian translators know English so well that they translate all our scientific advances as fast as we make them. We (meaning the United States) have shelves of Russian scientific literature that, if it were translated, might boost our present scientific knowledge by months, or, perhaps years."

The Russian course will be taught by Dr. Richard Lawson, assistant professor of German.

A second-year, intermediate Latin course will be offered here next fall also. The instructor, Dr. Gale Burnett, professor of English, taught the same course here in 1954.

Week Set Aside To Honor Efforts In Pan Am Unity

This week has been set aside by the Pan American Union to honor in appropriate manner the efforts which have been made to achieve greater unity in the Western Hemisphere, according to Dr. Robert Richardson, professor of geography and Dr. Vincent Padgett, assistant professor of political science.

Richardson and Padgett are members of the Committee on Latin American Studies. One of the functions is to plan the Pan American Day celebration. The committee believes that it has arranged a program which will be outstanding for the occasion. This will be the 21st annual celebration at San Diego State.

FEATURES DANCES

A program will be presented at 11 a.m. today in HS Auditorium, featuring a speaker and Latin American dances. The speaker will be the noted Pan American educator Senora Angelica Chaves de Patterson.

Mrs. Patterson earned her college degree at Normal College, now Hunter College of New York. She also did graduate work at the University of New York. Her professional achievements include directorship of the Professional School of Panama and assistant director of Panama's Teacher's College and professor of education and curriculum planning.

Nash To Lecture In CLS Thursday

Ogden Nash, the poet and humorist, will be on campus this Thursday. Nash, sponsored by the Lectures and Assemblies Committee, will speak at 8:15 p.m. in the Campus Laboratory School.

He will recite a number of his classics, commenting on the events in his life that produced them.

Nash's verses can be found in books of poetry and national magazines.

Before embarking on his career in light verses, Nash was a short-term college student, an unsuccessful bond salesman and a bored advertising copywriter.

Jazz Concert Scheduled Tonight

A jazz concert sponsored by the music department will be presented tonight at 8:15 in the CLS Auditorium, according to J. Dayton Smith, chairman of the music department.

Performing in the program will be a sixteen piece ensemble and three small combos under the direction of Gary Lefebvre. Most of the music played will be original compositions by students Al Oldfield and Mike Wolford.

General admission will be $1 or 50 cents with AS card. The proceeds will go to the music scholarship fund.

33 Entries To Battle For Vocal Awards In Annual Spring Sing

Thirty-three entries, sponsored by fraternities, sororities, and other on-campus organizations, will compete for honors at Spring Sing, according to Betty Dawson, chairman.

Spring Sing, sponsored annually by the Associated Women students, will be held at 8 p.m., May 9, in the Greek Bowl.

MIXED DIVISION GROUPS

Seven Greek fraternities will combine their voices with seven sororities to participate in the mixed division. Those

Polio Season Near, Innoculation Urged By Health Services

April is considered the start of the polio season by the State Department of Public Health, according to Dr. Frank O. Robertson, director of Health Service here.

By acting at once, persons may build up some degree of immunity to the crippling effects of poliomyelitis before the season is under way. Anyone not yet immunized should see his family physician now and discuss starting his series of Salk vaccine inoculations immediately.

The full series consists of three inoculations. The second should be given about four weeks after the first and the third should be given seven months or more after the second. The first inoculation is about 60 per cent effective in protecting a person against paralytic poliomyelitis. The second raises that effectiveness to 85 per cent, and the third gives even more protection.

According to Robertson, poliomyelitis seldom occurs in persons over 40 years of age. The State Department of Public Health believes little more than half the persons under 40 throughout California have been immunized so far. The picture in San Diego County is much the same.

The age groups most in need of immunization are children under 5 years of age and adults of 20 to 39 years of age. Young parents are urged to get inoculations for themselves as well as for their pre-school children.

Robertson said that since the first of this year there have been three cases of poliomyelitis including one death reported in San Diego County.

Fox, Ellis To Represent San Diego State At West Point National Debate Tournney

For the seventh consecutive year, San Diego State will send a debate team to the West Point National Debate Tournament to be held April 23-26 at West Point, according to Dr. Robert L. Benjamin, assistant professor of speech arts.

Fred Fox and Korky Ellis, debaters who placed fourth at the West Point National Elimination Tournament March 21 and 22 at the University of California at Santa Barbara, will participate in the annual competition.

WIN AT TEMPE

SDS captured the sweepstakes award in the women's division at the annual Pi Kappa Delta Pacific Province Championship Tournament held April 3-5 at Arizona State at Tempe, Benjamin said.

Four out of the six SDS debate teams journeying to the tournament won superior ratings for being defeated only once in six rounds of debate. Winning top honors in the women's division were Connie Greaser and Janet Wilson, and Irene Lopez and Judy Wagner. Top ratings in the men's event went to Korky Ellis and Fred Fox, and Jim Albanese and Fritz Boldt.

Though the team of Sharon Peterson and Donna Bergelis did not win any honors, they had the highest overall team rating by the end of the tournament.

Miss Lopez, winning first places in three straight rounds of women's oratory, won a superior rating in her division. Ann Allenby also won an excellent rating in oratory.

Ellis received an excellent rating in men's oratory, while Sharon Peterson won the same honor in discussion.

ONLY TURBAN ON CAMPUS

'Strange' Appearance Belied By Conversation

Ajaib Singh Takhar, by all odds, is the only person on campus who wears conventional western dress with a bright pink turban on his head.

The 23-year-old Takhar, who lives with an American family at 3818 Florida street, was born in Shankar, India, in the state of Punjab. He came to SDS last October to continue working for his master's degree in English, after visiting colleges in New York, Chicago and Detroit.

Standing 5' 7" tall, this bearded Indian might present a mysterious and foreboding appearance to the average Aztec. But upon talking with him a few minutes, such a first-sight impression would quickly vanish, for his low, quiet voice, similar to a modified Southern drawl, and swarthy skin set off by gleaming white teeth, radiate nothing but warmth and friendliness.

TOO MUCH CONFUSION

"Ah, over here," he said "is much confusion—always rushing, rushing. Life is too busy. In India, people are different. They like the simple life, but with high intellectual exercise. That is the core of Indian philosophy. I like to follow it because it gives such tranquility of mind. Ah, but over here there is not much time to rest. People are very friendly and witty."

Because he likes to write novelettes and poetry, Takhar said that he is carrying 14 units this semester—all in English classes dealing in literature and composition.

Recently, he explained, he has written a novel entitled, "Wrinkled Lips Kissing the Tomb," an Indian love tragedy which takes place at the closing decade of the 19th century. He hopes that the story will be printed here, and has also, sent it back to India, translated in his native tongue. He feels that it might be made into a movie there.

"Another story I have written, Takhar added, "is a play called, "Man is Worse Than a Beast, but Better than an Angel." He described it as an extreme tragedy.

INTERNATIONAL VIEW

When questioned about India's stand on international affairs, Takhar said, "Indians believe that man is basically good. Therefore, India looks upon America as a friend and also Russia. But Communism cannot gain any foothold in India; for any religion that exists in India is a part of Hinduism, which is made up of many religions. You see, my people are very religious. Therefore, India is neutral."

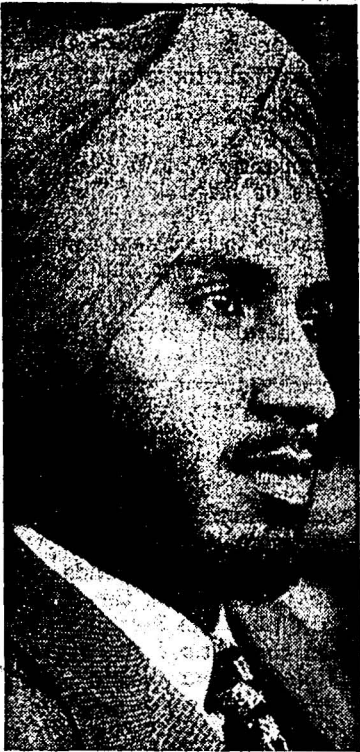

Change Proposed For AS By-Laws

The following is a proposed amendment to the AS by-laws:

Insert the words "radio and television" after "drama" in Article 13, Section 3 of by-laws of the Associated Students of San Diego State College.

Article 13, Section 3, now reads:

"In each of the fields of music, journalism, dramatics, and forensics, the official Service Award Key shall be awarded each year to not more than three students who in at least two years of work in their respective fields have distinguished themselves for their service, cooperation, and achievements. Recommendations for these awards shall be submitted to the Student Council by the respective faculty heads of these activities."

And how does a boy go about getting acquainted with a girl there? Takhar smiled again and explained that there was no such thing as dating. All Indian marriages are arranged by the parents. In rare cases, he said, some couples do not follow this custom, but marry only for love.

"Even though I am not married now, I may already have a wife picked out for me by my parents in India. If so, I will probably have to marry her when I go back there. Right now, I could be in a very unusual situation," he explained.

FILMS LACK KISSES

"For entertainment," Takhar continued, "Indians like their movies on the serious side. You see, sex as presented in our films is different from yours, for there is no kissing. Illicit love is not shown either because Indians believe that marriage means forever. So there is no such word as divorce because the people do not believe it is a good thing. Some couples simply separate, but such a happening is rare.

"American movies and stars are popular over there, however," Takhar added. "Marlon Brando and Elizabeth Taylor find favor with the people. But Rita Hayworth is best known," he laughed, "probably because she has married so many times."

Next semester, Takhar plans to go to the University of California to continue his studies. From there he will go back to his native India to write. Perhaps there he can start cultivating his fruit and flower trees once again, a hobby he does not have time for here where "life is too busy."

A STRANGE BREED

Aztec March Is On

The paper you are reading is the product of 34 journalism students who attempt to satisfy your journalistic needs twice a week throughout the semester. The product of these students is not a professional product because they are students and have grade-points and full-load class schedules to maintain.

As this paper satisfies your need for campus news and activities, it also gives these students the valuable experience needed by students of journalism. They make mistakes, but it is so much easier to learn from mistakes since they are so apparent.

With the beginning of this college year in September the Aztec launched a bi-weekly newspaper. To members of long standing on this campus this was not the first time they had seen this attempted. But to us, more recent students, it was something new . . . something different. To me, it was too radical to believe . . . so much work by so few people for so little credit.

My predecessor, Sandra Keyes, showed me it could be done with only a staff of 19, nine members of whom were editors. I was sold on the bi-weekly. It was a new tradition for San Diego State, one that would be hard to shake loose for a long time to come. But there is a good possibility that this new tradition will be lost next semester, for I am told that a tri-weekly paper is being advocated.

As a student reader I am overjoyed, as a journalism student I am awed at such a maneuver. As an editor and overseer of the present staff, I know this strange breed of Aztec, called the journalism major, can master any feat it attempts. If these persons say they will give their readers a tri-weekly . . . they will. From a tri-weekly only finances and facilities can keep the staff from producing a daily.

The Aztec march is on.

Traditions Revival

With the re-dedication of Hello Walk Thursday the Traditions Committee will see the start of the results for which they have been working these past weeks. The feeling that the old traditions, which are so important to any college, have been lacking at San Diego State has been expressed by many students.

The Traditions Committee, under the direction of sophomore Bob Black, has undertaken the job of making students aware of the old and the newer traditions of our campus. This committee, no matter how hard it works, will never be able to do the job without the help of each and every student.

Unless the traditions are kept and followed they will again die and be forgotten. Instead of one re-dedication or one traditions week, our campus needs 52 tradition weeks a year. The traditions need the help of every student on this campus if they are to be kept alive.

Bookstore Display Features Speaker's Works

Books written by Ogden Nash, John Mason Brown and George Abbe are now on display in the Bookstore's glass case, according to manager Thomas E. Macklin.

Those especially recommended for reading by Macklin are "The Winter House" by Abbe, "Still Seeing Things" and "Through These Men" by Brown, and "I Couldn't Help Laughing" by Nash.

Abbe's "House" is described by Macklin as a soul-searching narrative story of the growing up of a young man who dared to break in conscience.

"Men" has Brown giving "a candid picture of our time in terms of some outstanding men who have determined our political life and shaped our outlook," while "Things" is a discussion on theatre, art, books, and people.

Nash's book introduces an assortment of funny stories by Nash. Another of his books in the display, "Selected Verse," is also similar in theme.

All three of these distinguished authors are scheduled to be guest speakers here soon — Nash, at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the C.L.S. auditorium; Brown at 11 a.m. April 24 in the Main Quad, and Abbe, at 11 a.m. May 1 in the C.L.S. auditorium.

'Hello Walk' To Be Reopened

Cetza Originated Custom In 1939

(This is a reprint of an article that appeared in the March 7, 1939 issue of The Aztec.)

Any male Stater who has his eye on a certain cutie and can't get up enough umph to do anything about it will soon get his chance. Soon, thanks to Cetza's "Hello Walk," the bashful boy will be able to speak to his dream-gal without danger of being snubbed, and with a fair possibility of being answered.

"Hello Walk" is the title which will be conferred on the diagonal pathway leading from the Quad to the cafe. Starting March 17, all students using this path will be requested to grin and say "hello" to passing Staters, whether introduced or not. An initiation ceremony will be held in the morning by Cetza members. The words "hello walk" will be inscribed at both ends of the path.

Of course, those students whose "hellos" are weak and sickly run the risk of being ignored. Weak-voiced Joes and Janes are therefore urged to practice up before the opening day.

And there are always those cynics who will turn around, stare, and mutter—

"Who the heck is that guy?" in a clearly audible tone of voice.

However, it is the firm belief of Norma Boldman, Cetza president, that most students will cooperate whole-heartedly in promoting this venture as they have done in the past.

Walk Originally Dedicated In 1939

(This is a reprint of an article that appeared in the March 24, 1939 issue of The Aztec.)

Vice-President Irving Outcalt will officiate in the absence of President Walter R. Hepner in the dedication of Hello Walk today at 12 o'clock.

Short speeches will also be made by Norma Baldman, Cetza president, and the president of Shen Yo. The social sorority is donating bronze plaques to be imbedded in the cement at each end of the walk.

Dedication of the promenade will take place at the Quad entrance, with Professor Outcalt cutting the green ribbons stretched across the entrance and proceeding up the walk to the other end where that ribbon will also be severed.

Hello Walk extends from the Quad along the diagonal path past the freshman quad and the patio cafe to the administration building.

Purpose of the walk is to create greater friendship among the students. Anyone using it has etiquette's permission to say "hello" to everyone else whether they have been formally introduced or not.

Letters To The Editor

Letters to the editor should be in The Aztec office, HS135, by noon Wednesday for publication in the Friday issue. All letters are subject to editing, must be signed, no more than 200 words in length.

Write! Right?

To all SDS students:

Folio is looking for is the best San Diego State has to offer. If you think and care about your thoughts why not write them? We of folio want to present your thoughts to the campus. But how can we present to the campus what you, the student, fail to present to us?

The new staff of Folio is looking at all the material personally. We feel that SDS, in its cumulative mind, a great store of creative talent.

If you are dissatisfied with life we offer a vehicle for your expression of dissatisfaction. Are you happy? Well, that is impossible, there are no happy college students. Are you critical? The answer must be "yes" or you wouldn't be in an institute dedicated to the principle that questions are solvable through search, realization, criticism and evaluation.

Surely you have written evidence of your quest after knowledge. Is it doing any good stuffed in your notebook or stacked under your desk or hidden in a folder somewhere? No! Your ideas must be made potent and alive by their presentation to the other minds of this college for analysis and enjoyment.

We offer you Folio. Bring your thoughts to the office of Dr. Sandstrom, HS214, by April 22 which will be the deadline date.

World University Service Provides Monetary Aid, Individual Assistance

The World University Service isn't a charity affair for college students, according to Neville Rubin, vice president of the Union of South African students. He spoke on the organization's meaning at Scripps Cottage last Wednesday.

Rubin, a University of Capetown graduate, said the service contributes money to help college students become the technical experts their countries need for a higher standard of living.

He said the organization represents college students from 42 countries and contributes money for things such as student health, educational facilities and equipment, and individual emergency aid.

HEALTH BIG PROBLEM

"Student health isn't a problem in America and South Africa," Rubin said, "but it is in Japan, India, Pakistan, and many other countries."

He said that 20,000 students die annually of tuberculosis in Japan. The organization tries to help solve such problems by collecting money for clinics, sanitariums, and iron lungs.

He then pointed out the problem of India. "The University of Calcutta is the largest in the non-Communist world," he said. "It has enrolled 60,000 students, and out of that group, I've seen at least 3,000 who didn't have anywhere to live. Some slept out on the streets, and others existed in closet-like hovels."

U.S. STUDENT WORRIES

"Here in America, students think they have troubles. But they aren't anything compared to India," he said. "The most important problems here seem to be what classes to choose and trying to find parking places for their cars."

The latest example of World University Service was in October of 1956, during the Hungarian revolt, Rubin said. It involved 7,000 students who fled to free countries, needing food, clothing, and shelter.

"The organization asked its respective members to accept a certain quota of these people. The United States accepted 1,200," he said.

Tradition Campaign Opens Thursday

MAIN ARCH: Upperclassmen enjoy their privilege of entering their classes through the main arch.

A recent editorial in The Aztec decried the lack of traditions on campus or the lack of the observance of the traditions that had been established previously.

Bob Clark and his Tradition Committee, with the help of Dr. Herbert Peiffer, dean of students, have set about to remedy the situation.

Starting with the rededication of Hello Walk Thursday, an effort will be made to re-establish all old Aztec traditions and to effect new ones.

Next September will begin an all-out effort to orient new students into the ways of the campus.

The Aztec in future issues will print a series of articles dealing with the background of each established tradition on campus. Today the history of Hello Walk will be presented.

HELLO WALK: Starting Thursday when Hello Walk will be rededicated many scenes like this will be found on the diagonal path running from the Quad to the Caf.

MONTEZUMA'S AREA: Traditionally these freshmen girls aren't supposed to be caught next to the statue of Monty in the Quad.

BLUE BOOK BELLE: Twice a year a freshman and a senior girl alternate for the honor of being Belle of the Blue Book Ball. This year's freshman belle was Lynne Luckey.

Rugby Squad Wins Crown In First Year Of Competition

In four months, rugby on the San Diego State campus developed from an idea to the home of the champions of the Southern California Rugby Association.

The Aztec Rugby Club won the championship on March 29 by blanking favored Santa Ana 8-0 in Aztec Bowl. The Aztecs ended the season with a 6-1 record. The only loss was to Eagle Rock Athletic Club.

Rugby on the SDS campus is not recognized as an inter-collegiate sport and is not subsidized by school funds. All players belong to the Aztec Club and play rugby just for the fun of playing, Ian Richardson, the team spokesman said. The club paid for their road trips and other expenses out of the club treasury, Richardson said.

SDS AND SANTA ANA fight for the ball in the championship game played on March 29. The Aztecs in the dark uniforms won the game 8-0 to take the crown in their first year of competition.
